

Chewonki's Outdoor Classroom Teacher

(Environmental Educator/Trip Leader)

Positions Available:

Outdoor Classroom Teacher, 3-season position starting March 29, 2010

Thank you for your interest in Chewonki's Outdoor Classroom Teacher position. Our staff is made up of seventeen teachers in a 3-season position starting the end of March and ending at the end of October each year. There are also a few opportunities for continued work throughout the winter. (See detailed job description below). Please give me a call if you are interested and would like to set up an interview.

Qualifications

A BS or BA. Degrees in education, natural sciences, outdoor recreation, or related field preferred. Teaching experience required. Experience teaching environmental topics and leading low ropes courses a plus. We are looking for teachers with strong leadership ability, a dynamic personality and a passion for living and working with children in the out-of-doors. We also require Wilderness First Responder (WFR) and lifeguarding certification. We host WFR at Chewonki in January and lifeguard training in March. To maintain the professional quality of our programs we encourage our teachers to be thinking of a two year minimum stay with time away in the winter.

Salary and Benefits

Salary of $260/week, plus room and board, health insurance available for $35/month, one week paid vacation in August and 6 paid weeks of environmental education and wilderness trip training. We also provide a staff purchase plan for discounts on out-door gear.

To Apply

Please submit your resume, cover letter and references along with the EE Application Form, posted on the employment opportunities page. Please include a list of your strengths and three reasons you are interested in this position.

Chewonki's Outdoor Classroom Teacher

(Environmental Educator/Trip Leader)

Job Description

Mission: The Chewonki Foundation is dedicated to helping people grow individually and in community with others by providing educational experiences that foster an understanding, appreciation and stewardship of the natural world and that emphasize the power of focused, collective effort.

Chewonki's Outdoor Classroom Teacher is a 3-season position starting the end of March and ending in early November each year. This is a demanding job, being on-duty 24 hours a day for 3-5 day residential programs each week, camping out with a group of 10-12 students. In the spring and fall our teachers lead group challenges and teach natural history with the school programs. Each summer they take on a leadership role in camp leading trips or teaching nature, art, photography, or group challenges. Teachers who come with trip leading experience are often called upon to lead summer wilderness trips. To help maintain the professional quality of our teaching staff we encourage applicants to be thinking of a two-year minimum stay. Most staff leave for the winter, but we do have opportunities for a few teachers to stay on for winter programs.

Because of the nature of our programs, we look for experienced teachers, who are sensitive and caring and who enjoy teaching and working with children. Our teachers also need camping skills and trip leading experience. A strong willingness and an ability to work very hard is a necessity. We require an up-to-date Wilderness First Responder and Lifeguarding Certification and we host WFR at Chewonki in January and lifeguard training in March. Benefits include: Starting salary of $260/wk, plus room and board, health insurance available for $35/month, one-week paid vacation in August and 6 paid weeks of environmental education and wilderness trip training. We also provide a staff pro-purchase plan for discounts on out-door gear.

Chewonki's Outdoor Classroom program is a unique model in which our teachers and the school chaperone live with their students in small camping groups at shore-side campsites on Chewonki Neck. Teachers and students sleep in tents, cook over open fires, and learn camping skills. Respect and responsibility for oneself, others and our natural environment are stressed within these small group communities. Our teachers lead their groups through two lessons daily focusing on both natural history (in-depth field studies of various ecosystems or concepts) as well as challenge activities, such as group initiatives, low ropes course, rock climbing, map and compass, canoeing and more. Night activities include group games, night walks, natural history roves, or a live animal presentations. These programs take place on Chewonki's 400-acre peninsula, which is surrounded by tidal estuaries. Our land is mostly wooded, but also contains fields, two fresh water ponds, a working organic farm, an extensive salt marsh, a hiking trail system and ten established campsites with tent platforms. In addition to the camping programs, we also offer day programs (on- and off-site), teacher workshops, and occasional wilderness trips..

Other programs exist at Chewonki side by side with the Center for Environmental Education. Most teachers live on campus and we all work together to make the community a successful one. When not on program, teachers are expected to participate in daily chores and cleaning and general Chewonki maintenance work.

Working for Chewonki's Center for Environmental Education is an extremely demanding, yet rewarding experience. It is an excellent teacher training opportunity regardless of experience or background. Although the programs are short (usually 3-5 days), the growth that is realized by each participant is often quite amazing. To be part of that growth is a tremendous responsibility and a wonderful opportunity.
